

Wary vs. Weary

The words wary and weary are spelled similarly with a single e setting them apart. Since both terms are used as an adjective, some people may accidentally use one in place of the other despite their different meanings. This article will help you avoid this mistake and use them accurately in your writing.

The word wary is used as an adjective meaning “marked by keen caution, cunning, and watchfulness especially in detecting and escaping danger” or “feeling or showing caution about possible dangers or problems.”
